LOS ANGELES, CA – Shout! Factory rides the next wave of reissues from the Herb Alpert Signature Series with a set of three hit albums from the late 1960s, all due in stores August 16th. Alpert's distinctive Ameriachi compositions shaped Sounds Like..., Herb Alpert's Ninth, and The Beat of the Brass which each attained Gold status by the end of the decade. This trio of albums is the latest to be released via the Herb Alpert Signature Series, launched earlier this year to re-release a line of the most popular albums by Herb Alpert & the Tijuana Brass.

In May of 1967, Alpert released the first of his two albums that would dominate the pop charts that year. Finally breaking the Monkee's 31-week stint at #1, Sounds Like... spent one week at the top of the Billboard album charts before Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band took over the world. Sounds Like... became a testament of Alpert's enduring popularity; his mariachi compositions held their own alongside the biggest pop and rock phenomena of the decade.

At the close of 1967, Alpert issued Herb Alpert's Ninth, revealing his sense of humor as well as artistic depth by incorporating new musical elements into the Tijuana Brass' trademark sound. With dramatic string sections and his reworking of "Carmen," the album playfully moves back and forth between creative brilliance and outright fun. His cover of The Beatles' "With A Little Help From My Friends" and the Dozier-Holland penned "The Happening" are lively and exuberant romps.

The Beat of the Brass followed just four months later. The lavishly packaged counterpart to Herb's recent television special (of the same name) was marked by the #1 single, "This Guy's In Love With You," written by Burt Bacharach and surprisingly sung by Herb himself. The remainder of the album is filled with Alpert's take on time-honored favorites including "Thanks For The Memory" and "Talk To The Animals," which helped propel it to the top of the charts.
